

Custom Surge Protective Solutions

Even with one of the largest product offerings in the surge protection industry, sometimes our standard products, options, enclosures and packages are not enough. Yes, we have our core product line the Advantage series AC panel mount devices available in peak surge current ratings from 90kA up to 900kA per phase, available in fixed clamping and sine wave tracking and featuring our 25-year unlimited free replacement warranty, discrete "All Mode" protection, component level thermal fusing and patented internal circuit board mounted over-current fusing.

We also have a full line of dedicated load, data line, current loop and telecom protection devices. Still, we do occasionally run into customer applications where one of our standard products will not solve the customer's issues. This is where Surge Suppression Incorporated® separates from the rest of the surge protection industry with the willingness and ability to design custom surge protection solutions.

Our experienced staff of professional design and application engineers has the experience and knowledge needed to successfully solve your most difficult surge protection applications. We are very proud of our ability to solve any surge protection problem. If one of our thousands of standard models will not fit your unique requirements, we will work hand-in-hand with your personnel to make whatever modifications and design changes necessary to provide the right protection solution. From a single unit to an entire protection system, no job is too small, too large or too complex.

In the past, some of these custom solutions have included protection for theatrical lighting controls, high-end audio systems, casino and gaming controls and electronics, pyrotechnic controls, flow metering controls, traffic controls, pump controls and amusement ride controls.

These custom solution customers have included some of the largest, most respected and most demanding corporations in America. Simply meeting their expectations is not enough, we must exceed their expectations. At Surge Suppression Incorporated® we are exceeding expectations with custom surge protection solutions.
